

Get Help for Minor Tooth Pain Without Leaving Home.

Non-urgent dental care is just a call or click away with Teladoc Health.

Next time you have a toothache, avoid the long wait at the ER. Get help from a Teladoc Health® licensed provider for non-urgent and common conditions, like a mild toothache. You can even get a prescription, if needed, sent to a pharmacy of your choice.

When should you go to the emergency room for a toothache?

You should go to the emergency room for a severe toothache if you're experiencing:

- Difficulty swallowing or breathing
- Face numbness or weakness
- High fever
- Swelling in the face, jaw, or neck
- Trauma or injury to the jaw
- Uncontrollable bleeding in the mouth
